Man Outflies the Birds.

Compared with an aeroplane ascent of 15,000 feet, the common birds are mere groundlings, for generally they fly at no greater height than 200 feet.
When migrating, however, they mount higher, though even then the wild goose (the loftiest of them) seldom reaches 2,000 feet. The highest flier in the world is the great condor, which sometimes rises five miles.

COLLEGE STUDENTS
SCORE AS PLAYERS

"Much Ado About Nothing" Presented
in Capable Style As Part of Milton Commencement Program.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Milton, June 17.—At Milton "the play is the thing" and never was it more so than this year. For two hundred years Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing" has been popular, and Tuesday night the forecast of the seventeenth century again proved true.

Let but Beatrice
And Benedick be seen, lo in a trice
The cockpit, galleries, boxes all are full.

The play opens on the return of Don Pedro victorious from his wars.
A gallant company of men attended Don Pedro, and truly Mr. Bonnell in his gorgeous costume would be a lover too costly to wear every day, and a maid "must needs have another for working days." W. K. West as Antonio, and Mr. Thornate as Leonato played their parts excellently. A tantale is woven in this play, for there are three villains—Don John, Con-rade and Horatio. Hearts quaked as these wicked men in the persons of
A. L. Burdick, Mr. Madden, and Mr.
Jah, revealed their foul designs, and had it not been for the bravery of the night watch the future of gentle Hero
would certainly have been ruined.
But Mr. Nelson, as Dogberry, was not a man to be trifled with, and under his able direction the watchmen caught the criminals. These most "senseless and fitmer for the constable of the watch" despite warning from Dogberry that if they caught a third of the most peaceable way was to strut out of the play, and the court-
age to arrest the villain, and the right were the playgoers that these men had such faithful enforcers of the law.
For lovely Hero won our hearts as well as Claudio's. Miss Stephanie Deland played perfectly the part of Hero, the filly maid. And when that gentle girl was cast off at the altar
by her hasty and impetuous lover
some of the audience hunted furtively
for handkerchiefs, and in their hearts denounced Mr. Froehorn who played the part of Claudio. Beatrice's indignation flares up at her cousin's wrongs, and she appealed to Benedick to help Claudio. Oh! old! the wooing on it between these merry wits, Benedick and Beatrice. Miss Belle Car-wright played with zest the part of my Lady Disdain, and C. B. West was a dashing Benedick.

WILL PLANT BLACK BASS FRY IN RIVER

Members of Rock County Rod
and Gun Club Expect Large Shipment of Fry From State Hatchery.

Between ten and twelve thousand black bass fry are expected by individual members of the Rock County Rod and Gun club Thursday morning
at 10:20 o'clock over the Chicago Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, between Monterey and the four mile bridge.

Twelve cans have been promised by the state game officials to be shipped from the hatchery to arrive on this date. Each can contains from eight to ten thousand black bass fry. Under favorable conditions the planting of this number of fish should within a few years increase the sport of fishing to a marked degree in Rock river near this city. The gamey for no fish fights harder when hooked
and the club members are enthusiastic over the amount of fry they have been able to obtain.

The greatest check to good fishing in Rock River, declare Rock county
gamekeepers, is the German carp,
which have swarmed the stream, crowding out game fish, much to the anger of the fishermen. Hunters also blame the German importation being the carp destroy the roots of the wild rice on which water fowl
make their chief food supply.

Seining seems to have little effect on these hardened pests, for the more room is made for them the more they multiply. Of late hatcheries declare that hundreds of carp are seen in schools at almost every turn of the river near the ur-face of the water breathing air. Placing a bounty on the carp is a method considerably favored by sportsmen in this section.

BELOIT CAMPING PARTY
STOP ON WAY TO LAKE

Eight young ladies, comprising a camping party from Beloit, stopped here today for short time on their way to Lake Koshong. They plan to spend ten days at the lake enjoying camp life. Those who composed the party were the Misses Josephine Reed, Carolyn Parker, Kathryn Ziller,
Hazel Erickson, Margaret Blaver,
Mary Gregory of Beloit, Jean Wilkinson and Mildred Poellen.

DARLINGTON FIRE LADDIES TO ATTEND STATE MEETING

Forty-five members of the Darlington fire department passed through this city today on their way to the state firemen's convention, which is being held at Oconomowoc. Tomorrow the big events will be held, and the Darlington men are out to capture the honors. Twenty of the men will take part in the contests, while the others will play in the band.

We require higher tasks because we do not recognize the height of those we have. Trying to be kind and honest seems an affair too simple and too inconsequential for gentlemen of our heroic mold.—Stearns.

MOOSE BAND GIVES CONCERT TONIGHT

First of Series of Weekly Programs
During Summer Months Will Be Enjoyed This Evening.

The first of a series of weekly band concerts during the summer months will be given this evening at eight o'clock at the court house park by the Moose band under the direction of Al Kneff. This announcement will be welcomed by all music-lovers and it is safe to predict that there will be a big crowd present to enjoy the opening program of the season. The musicians have been faithful at rehearsals during the past winter and spring and are ready to play for the most critical. A popular program has been arranged for this evening and cannot but meet the approval of the public.
It is as follows:

March—"Celebrity"..... Richards
Overture—"From Mount"..... Hazel
Meet Me in Blossom Time..... Shannon Waltz—"Lights and Shadows".....
Rockwell
"Rebecca of Sunny Brook Farm".....
Gumble

PUPILS OF ST. PAUL'S CONGREGATION ENJOYED
PICNIC UP RIVER TODAY

Over eighty youngsters, pupils of the school adjoining St. Paul's German Lutheran church, and conducted with that institution, held a picnic today at Crystal Springs Park, chaperoned by teachers of the school.
The youngsters marched from the church up Academy street, and down Milwaukee street to Main, from where they proceeded to the boat dock. Each child carried an American flag.

SURPRISE PARTY GIVEN FOR MRS. JOHN DALEE

Friend of Mrs. John Dalee, who leaves next week for Chicago, where she will make her future home, gave her a surprise party Tuesday evening at the home of her sister, Mrs. James Galagher of Terrace street. Twenty-five young women were present and enjoyed a pleasant time at cards, Mrs.
Card Ash and Miss Marie Coe
winning the honors. A delightful musical program was given by Misses Mary Estline and Marie Murphy. The guests presented Mrs. Dalee with a beautiful silver meat fork.

AMUSEMENT.

Absolute obedience from animals is one of the foundations of training the wild beasts. Without it, there would be no performing wild animals, and no trainer. It is a well known fact that trainers often spend hours and times a whole day, insisting on an animal doing some little thing which he is reluctant to do. It is simply a matter of obedience and it must be insisted upon, no matter at what trouble.

Herr Ernest Albers, one of the most daring trainers in the world, who works a group of wild animals, the Hagenbeck-Wallace Shows, nearly lost his life at one time because he had not insisted on an animal promptly obeying him. Herr Albers prefers only to train the most savage and dangerous beasts, but in this case he had concluded that the animal was not leaving very well, and it is a strict rule that no animal who is the least sick is allowed to perform or be trained. For this reason the animal was lead off; but the next time he absolutely refused to do what was wanted of him, and the fact of trying to make him do brought about an attack. As it was, Herr Albers got off with a badly torn hand and arm, and was in the hospital several weeks.
It is not the eye—though that may express the quality of resoluteness of will and patience—is the brain that controls a group of Hagenbeck species, there is an ever element of danger present, no matter how well trained they may be. Every time a trainer turns his back in a cage he risks his life; not a great risk, to be sure, but there is always a chance of death in a stroke. Yet he is impossible to keep the eye on alone twenty, and the man must trust to the good temper of his subjects and his own control and good fortune.

The world's greatest collection of wild animals will be seen at Janesville Wednesday, June 24, when the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus comes.

WILL ENJOY OUTING

Annual Picnic of Janesville Machine
Company Will Be Held Saturday
at Harlem Park.

All present and former employes of the Janesville Machine company have been invited to attend the annual picnic which will be held on Saturday, June 20, at Harlem park, near Rockford. The company's officials have made arrangements for a most delightful outing and several hundred persons, employes and their families,
will be on hand for the festivities.

The delegation, accompanied by the Bower City band, will leave Janesville on special interurban cars at eight o'clock Saturday morning, leaving at the corner of Main and Court streets,
and will return leaving from the park at six o'clock. This will give a full day for the picnickers all of whom will wear a J. M. Co. badge which will admit them to the attractions at the park at half price, with the exception of the skating rink.

The committee will furnish coffee, cream and sugar free of charge to the picniker at dinner and every arrangement will be made to insure a good time.

One of the features of the day's program will be the ball game in the afternoon between Wausau and Rockford in the Wisconsin-Illinois league.
This will be the sixteenth annual outing which the company has arranged for its employes.

MOTORCYCLE TOURISTS PASS THROUGH CITY AND ENJOY COUNTRY RIDING

A party of motorcycle tourists, consisting of C. A. Carpenter and family Kneha, visited Janesville Tuesday.
They were riding in Indian side-car outfits, Mr. Carpenter carrying four on his machine. Mr. Carpenter and Master Hazen Carpenter rode in the side car and Miss Merle Carpenter rode tandem.

The party is out for a week's tour
of Wisconsin cities, going from here to Beloit and Monroe, then to Madison, Milton, Lake Mills, Evansville, Watertown, Cambridge and intermediate points.

They report the roads excellent except where they have been "improved" by the improvement consisting of scraping all the sod, stones,
etc., out of the ditches into the center of the road. The electric starter outfit on the machine driven by Mr. Parsons attracted considerable attention.
With the side-car attachment the tourists report cross-country riding to be one of the finest methods of taking a vacation they have ever tried.

YOUR LIFE IN PERIL PARING
CORN: STOP IT!

Blue-jay The Safe, Quick Way!

So many people died from paring corns, that we decided there must be a way to stop it. Finally we discovered this safe, quick, painless home method and called it Blue-jay.

Now 60,000,000 people have used Bluejay, scarcely knowing what became of their corns.

Readers—Don't invite blood poisoning by picking, paring your corns. Don't dab on acids.

Test this treatment. Apply one little Blue-jay to the corn. Pains stops at once.
The corn loosens up. In two days you lift it out—root and all. That corn is gone forever. So with all corns. Get Blue-jay from your druggist today, 15c and 25c a package. Bauer & Black, Chicago, will send a sample free postpaid,
if your druggist's supply is out.

LEE TAKES A SLAP
AT TEASDALE PROBE

President of County Clerks' Association Criticizes State Vice Board Chairman.

Howard W. Lee, county clerk of Rock county, who is presiding at the sessions of the county clerks' association convention, now being held at La Crosse, took occasion to criticize Senator Teasdale, chairman of the state vice commission, in his response to the address of welcome extended to the clerks by Mayor Sorensen at the opening meeting Tuesday. The La Crosse Leader-Press has the following to say of Mr. Lee's attack:

Senator Howard Teasdale branded
La Crosse as an immoral city, following an investigation here by the vice investigating committee of the state legislature, of which he is the chairman.

Today Howard W. Lee of Janesville, county clerk of Rock county, called Senator Teasdale a "joke." He said that no one took any stock in what the senator said about La Crosse.

Mr. Lee's remarks were made in a brief response to the address of welcome delivered by Mayor Ori J. Sorensen at the opening of the ninth annual convention of the Wisconsin County Clerks' Association at the court house this morning.

"We have always considered La Crosse one of the best cities in the state," said Mr. Lee, "and until recently no attacks were made upon its reputation for morality. Senator Teas-

Sport Snap Shots

One boxing champ has passed away this season and there are those of us who look forward eagerly to see another do the same, viz., J. E. Jack Johnson. Many believe that coming to pass. If Moran is able to put up a fairly presentable battle it isn't unlikely that Father Time and Fast Living on the part of Johnson will help him put it over. Johnson has not engaged in a real honest-to-goodness fight for something like four or five years. The same length of time has been spent in flourishing the wassail-cup and singing "this is the life." Even though he should retain his title after his bout with Moran it won't be very secure from that time on. There are several others in his class quite capable of bringing about his demise. It seems safe to assert that after Johnson steps down from the throne his successor will enjoy the crown for quite a while. At least the game has been unable to provide more than one real heavy-weight star at a time throughout the past fifteen years or more. Jeffries stood without a rival for quite a while and Johnson has since enjoyed the same distinction. It is reasonable to suppose that the next champ—if he's a real one—will go untraveled for several seasons, too.

It is rumored that Bat Nelson would be pleased to get the job of managing Willie Ritchie. Anent which Bob Edgren, the Gotham sporting scribe, dashes off the following: "Imagine Bat coming into a newspaper office to tell what a great fighter Ritchie is. He'd start something like this:

"Say, I'm managing Ritchie. Believe me I'm some manager. Nobody can't put nothing over on me. You know me too. I wasn't human when I was fighting. Say, remember that time I licked Gans? That was some battle, take it from me. Until I came along Gans was the greatest light-weight champion we ever had. There haven't been any good light-weights since I got through and retired. Sometimes I gotta good mind to go back and clean up. It would be soft for me honest. There's nothing in the ring now like my scissors hook. Boxing is a forgotten art. Ritchie? Oh, yes, with me to manage him Ritchie can clean up the rest of the dubs. I'm going to show him a few things about fighting—and then—"

Geo Stovall, the Fed Kansas City manager comes forth to declare that it was he and not Joe Tinker that gave the Feds their first real impetus. In a magazine yarn in Everybodies a few months ago Tinker told all about how he first got the Feds well under way. Stovall now comes out in the Baseball Magazine and shows that he is the guy and that Tinker's statements in the matter are misleading. However the two would perhaps do well to defer their little dispute till a time when the enduring success of the Feds will confer a real distinction on the one who first put them well under way.

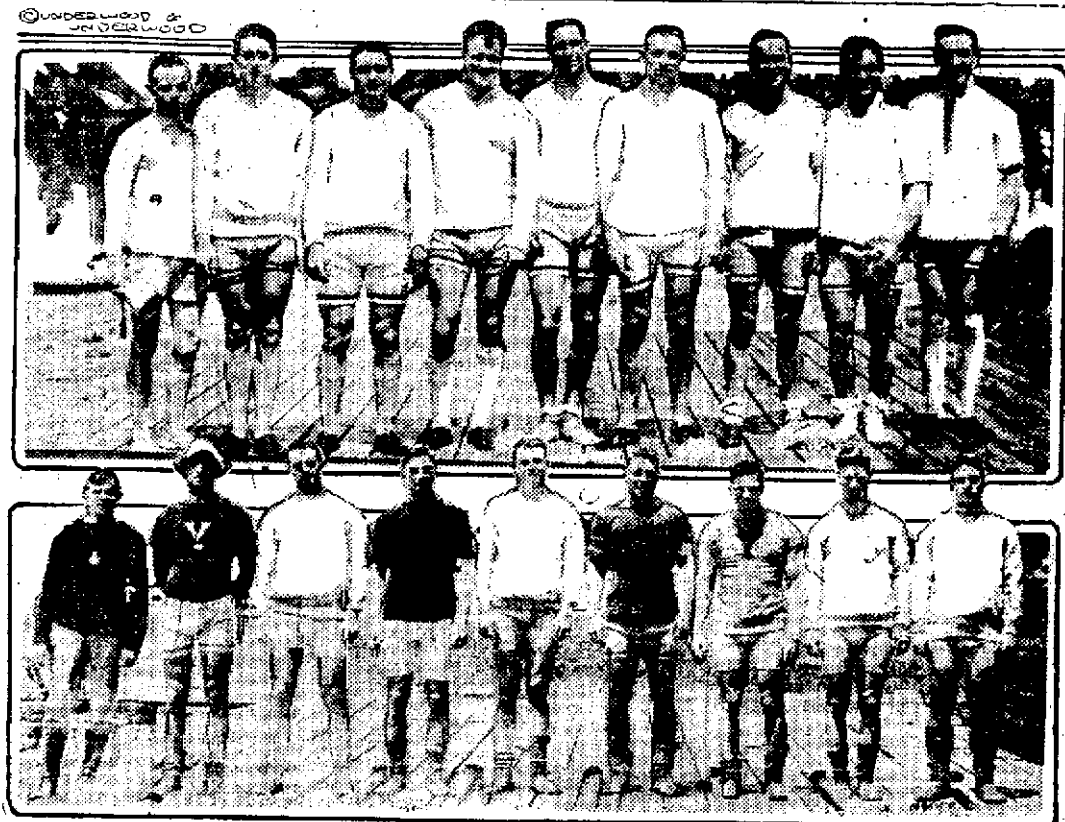

Charley Faust, one time mascot of the New York Giants aspired to the title of the "greatest nut in the game." Charlie should be very happy now. A commission in Portland, Ore., has decided that Charlie is quite insane.

A ball player in New York died at the plate after making a thrilling home run. This is a little better. Too many of them after tearing off a triple, die on third.

Task of Separation.
How important loom the thousand and one things that fill the daily life, yet how trivial is the bulk of them! To separate the realities from the unrealities, the significant from the trifling and non-essential—that surely is the first step to self-knowledge, the one and only royal road to self-conquest.—Collier's Weekly.

Harvard Varsity crew (top) and Yale eight.

That Harvard will win the annual race with the Yale eight this year is the opinion of experts. Yale has an English coach, Guy Nickalls, who is determined that English methods shall prevail. American methods are in vogue at Harvard, which it is said will insure victory to the Crimson.

AMUSEMENTS

CONCERT AT APOLLO.

An attraction of more than usual interest will be presented at the Apollo Theater tonight for one night only. An orchestra composed of 16 young ladies will offer a concert of instrumental and vocal selections. It was only by rare chance that Manager Zandee was able to secure these young artists. They are enroute to Racine to fill a Chautauque engagement and have consented to make two appearances here tonight at 7:30 and 9:15. Those who desire a high class orchestral concert will be delighted with this attraction. No increase in price of admission was made.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

The appropriations this ensuing year are largely in excess, not only of what they were last year, but of what they have been at any time before in the history of this state. There have been created by this last legislature a number of new commissions and quite a number of new offices, some of which are pretty high salaries. And if any one has curiosity to find out about these, he should read the following chapters of the laws of 1913.

401—Establishing a pharmaceutical station.

410—Creating in the office of the superintendent of public instruction eight new offices, with salaries ranging from $900 to $2,200 a year and expenses.

474—Four new bureaus in the state board of health, for which an appropriation of $40,000 is made.

714—A state fire insurance company.

751—County board of education in each and every county of the state.

126—A new board of land commissioners.

237—A board of accountancy, with three commissioners and a secretary, $10 a day each and necessary traveling expenses.

235 and 735—$20,000 for a commission to be designated as the "state administration building commission."

477—$75,000 to a commission for the Panama exposition.

622—State athletic commission, three commissioners and secretary, salary of secretary to be $1,500 and the three commissioners $1,000 each.

651—A Lake Superior and Mississippi river canal commission.

209 and 655—Creating a commission to buy land—the Belmont capitol commission.

731—The plumbers' commission.

764—An additional commission of banking.

Besides several new boards. These do not include all the new offices, but only a few as illustrative of the practice of the last legislature.

Experience has demonstrated, to a moral certainty, that the more offices and the more commissions, the greater the expenditure of public money, and the greater the expenditure of public money, the greater taxes. And when a new commission is created, though the first year it may have but five members, it takes but a few years to grow to have two hundred employees. What hope can there be of any improvement as long as we follow the present day political practice. The trusts are bad enough, but they are a mild affliction compared with this growing incubus of commissions and office holders.

There is one remedy, and one only, and that is, no matter what any politician or political party may promise you, turn to him a deaf ear, mark your course, with that of every other man interested in the welfare of the state, to the non-partisan highway, and put in office a governor and legislature that will work for you and not for the politician, that will have some idea that a public office is a public trust and not a private sinecure. Get away from the theoretical professor and his fine flow of language and his Utopian theories and back to the cold facts and practical duty of every good citizen.

A TRIFLE CAUSTIC.

Hearst and his editorial staff are a bit too caustic in their personal attacks upon President Wilson and his administration. They made a bitter fight against the passage of the Panama canal repeal bill, and now that it has passed, they continue to wage war upon the administration. Their latest suggestion is that Wilson and Bryan should have no place when the official opening of the Panama canal takes place, and says:

"Colonel Goethals announces that the president and his cabinet will lead the parade through the Panama canal on the old battleship Oregon on the occasion of its opening."

"The only thing President Wilson and his cabinet had to do with the canal was to surrender control of it to the British. So far as history shows, none of them had anything to do with the war in which the Oregon won her fame, except Mr. Bryan, whose service was, to put it mildly, rather perfunctory."

"If it had not been for the vigorous treatment of the Colombia-Panama situation by President Roosevelt, there would be no Panama canal today to be opened with international ceremonies. But for Roosevelt's action President Wilson and Secretary

Bryan now offer to apologize to Colombia and to pay $25,000,000 hush money!

"While they are about it they might apologize to Spain for Roosevelt's unseemly activity in keeping the Oregon and other ships of the navy fit for the war of 1898."

We do not know what position is to be assigned Colonel Roosevelt in the Panama canal parade, but the country will feel that the Oregon will be carrying the wrong crowd at the wrong end of the procession."

READY FOR ACTION.

Present indications are that the decks of the various fleets in Wisconsin politics are being cleared for action and that the various commanders who are plying the quarter decks are preparing to repel boarders and give no quarter to the conquered. It is going to be a sort of piratical battle this year despite all that is said to the contrary. There is the progressive republican crew ready to fire into any vessel that comes its way. The La Follette republicans ready with a broadside for the McGovernites, the progressives and the democrats. There is the little stalwart cruiser getting up steam to fight everyone in sight. There is the Karel democratic ship armed to the rails with fighting men attacking everyone and on the defensive all the time. The bagship of the Aylward-Davies faction, nominally under a democratic flag but ready to sink its compatriots, if need be, to gain their own ends. Now comes the non-partisan fleet, democrats, republicans, prohibitionists, socialists, progressives, all sailing under one flag with one motto: "Lower Taxes and Home Rule." Here is the reason for all this hurry and scurry on the part of the politicians. They do not know the size calibre of the guns this fleet has mounted and they fear results. So the battle is ready to start and the September primaries will leave a sad list of "casualties" to be recorded.

Carranza is not certain as yet whether he will be welcome at that Niagara Falls gathering or not. Meanwhile Huerta continues to resign daily and Panfili down at Vera Cruz is "watching and waiting" for something to happen.

Down in Cuyahoga county, Ohio, sixty miles of rural brick pavement is to be added to the four hundred miles of similar roadways already constructed. That is the way to advertise the prosperity of a county.

Janesville is pecking up this summer. A Fourth celebration an affair that is going to be a surprise to everyone has placed it on the map as a place to come to and have a good time.

The real battle between McGovern and Morris has not yet begun. The opening skirmish has been merely a preliminary to the general engagement.

And will be till I'm dead.

A Model.

She never says an unkind word when poor weak mortals fall.
She peddles out no gossip of the neighborhood at all.
She bears no grudge and no scandal.
There is no doubt of it.
And doings of her neighbors interest her not a bit.
She doesn't scold her husband and she's not one to complain.
Though the gossips hum around her, not an item does she gain.
When the hammers are all busy, she remains discreetly mum.
Perhaps you've guessed the answer.
Yes, the lady's deaf and dumb.

ROBBING THE MILK BOTTLE

A Syphon Invention for Removing the Cream When Desired

The sight of a quantity of rich cream on the top of the milk bottle is a sight which few housewives can resist, and the temptation to remove it and make use of it for one purpose or another, is almost impossible to pour the cream off, and usually an effort made to insert a spoon or other implement of this character has the effect of stirring up the cream so that it is lost. The device shown herewith has been recently patented and will drain off all the cream of the bottle without any loss by agitation of the contents of the bottle during the operation, as with a spoon or pouring. The syphon is of glass, cylindrical, but the lower end is a tube of rubber with one end thrust up into the glass. The upper end of the glass is lowered carefully into the cream, and when in place will about reach the lower part of the stratum of cream. The rubber is then closed by pinching and drawn slowly from the glass tube. This draws the cream up and starts the flow which continues until all the cream has been drawn off.

TO SYPHON OFF THE CREAM.

SCIENCE NOTES

A dozen or more different species of insects which are known to be the enemies of the grape moth, have been introduced into the most infested territory of Massachusetts, and the outlook is decidedly hopeful for the extermination of the pest.

One-sixth of the normal capacity of the lungs is sufficient to maintain life. This has been proven in France by a series of investigations covering a number of years and the results have been arrived at by a number of different experiments. Many animals such as rabbits, cats and dogs existed quite comfortably for many months after the removal of as much as three-quarters of the lung tissue.

The use of coon shells as fodder for cattle is being tried in France and is being watched with interest for the reason that this suggestion offers a possible field of usefulness for the byproduct of the French coon industry in the accumulation of shells for which there has heretofore been but little demand. There is some discussion as to the effect of a diet of coon shells on cows. Some investigations go to show that the amount of milk has been slightly decreased, while on the other hand it is said that the fatty content is increased.

There are several more or less well-known devices for the purpose of recording and indicating the vibrations in a piece of machinery, but none of these were suited for furnishing data in regard to an aeroplane for the reason that there were no fixed point support. In an apparatus for this purpose recently designed by the Dr. de Guicha there is a small air chamber covered by a diaphragm which is weighted by a heavy disk. The inertia of the metal disk serves instead of a fixed point, so that the air chamber transmits the different air pressure due to vibrations, by a flexible tube, to a second diaphragm chamber, provided with a metal point which makes a record on a drum.

DIES AT HOME IN CHICAGO TUESDAY

Mrs. Louisa Stillman, Former Resident of Milton, Passes Away at Old Age.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Milton, June 17.—Mrs. Louisa Gowdy Stillman was born in Verona, Ohio, county, New York, May 1, 1825. She grew to womanhood at New York, New York, and was married there to Ephraim Flint April 26, 1846. She came west as a bride and settled at Albion, Wisconsin. Eleven children were born to her, of whom only five grew to maturity. The husband died in 1894. In 1895 she was married to Edwin Fuller. He lived but a short time. In 1870 she was married to Dr. Charles Stillman, and made her home at Milton Junction, Wisconsin, where she lived until the death of her husband in 1890. She then went to live with her only remaining daughter in Janesville. In the fall of 1913 the family moved to Chicago, where she passed peacefully away June 14, 1914, in the ninety-fourth year of her age. She leaves a daughter, Louise (Mrs. Wilmer F. Hayes), a granddaughter, Elva (Mrs. James King), and two little great grand daughters.

She was a woman of remarkable strength of character. She had achieved "the Christian's secret of a happy life." She was converted when a girl at Waterville, New York, and her marriage was afflicted with the "S. H. P." people of her life, although she formally a member of any church. She had much sorrow. At the Old Folks' Day at Milton in 1911, where she was one of the honored ones, Pastor Randolph told of his interview with her regarding the secret of her happy life. "In 1865 my son, eighteen years old, came home from the war broken down in health. My husband had died, leaving me with five children. I had got to a point where I could not go any further. I just couldn't go another step. Then I thought, 'What's got to be done? Here are the children depending on you.' I had a friend who lost her husband and who kept talking and troubles to her children and everyone else. She was a dear friend, but I thought that was not the right way to do. There are a good many people who do this—talk and think about their troubles and put their burdens on the shoulders of others. I made up my mind to go ahead and do my best and trust the Lord for the rest. It was a turning point. Ever since I've tried to keep pleasant always. People are kind to me. No cross words are ever said to me, and I try to be kind to others, especially to the poor and lowly. Well, said I, it's my duty and that kills people. Quick as a flash she added, 'and kills the people around them.' Then she added this quaint phrase, 'If things don't look bright, scour 'em up a little.' She was always cheery and hopeful. There was always a way through every trouble. There was never a difficulty brought to her in the neighborhood that she did not have a plan by which something could be done. She had an unconquerable spirit of faith, hope and love. Says her daughter: 'Ever since I can remember mother has lived that beautiful life. Her life has been long, but there were no wasted years. She was the most unselfish person I ever knew. Funeral services were held at the Milton Junction S. D. B. church June 16, conducted by Pastor Randolph, assisted by Pastor Jordan. Mrs. Stillman had always been much interested in this church since the happy fourteen years spent there. Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hayes and Mr. and Mrs. James King and baby daughter came from Chicago. Many loving friends were present from Milton Junction, Milton, Albion, Janesville, Lima and other places. A quartet furnished beautiful and appropriate music. The casket, buried beneath its load of beautiful flowers, was laid in the cemetery at Edgerton, the last rites at the grave being performed by Elder Simon H. Babcock of Albion.

Not Really Binding.
"Didn't you solemnly promise to love, honor and obey me, my dear?"
"Yes, but the minister has known me all my life, and he knew I didn't mean it."—Puck.

ALBANY

Albany, June 16.—Mrs. Minnie Brown, who has been visiting her brother, Mr. A. R. Bennett the past week, returned to her home in Monroe this morning.
Mr. and Mrs. Jos. La Valliere and daughter Dora left Saturday for Paris, where they have an engagement for the coming year.
Mr. Harry Mathews of Milwaukee visited his father, C. C. Mathews, over Sunday.
Atkinson who has been very ill is slowly improving.
The funeral of the late Mrs. Lorrinda Hulbert was held from the Baptist church Saturday. Mrs. Hulbert has been ill for a long time and the death was unexpected. She leaves two daughters, two sons, two brothers and two sisters, besides many other relatives and a host of friends. The children are as follows: Mrs. K. Humphrey and Mr. John Hulbert of Minnesota; Mrs. Hulbert of Colorado and Miss Julia Hulbert of this place. The brothers are Messrs. Chas. and Wm. Sutley both of Albany, the sisters are Mrs. Dr. Broughton of Rockford, Ill., and Mrs. Sarah Gould of Minneapolis. Minnie was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. John Hulbert of Minn. Mrs. Arnold Smiley of Los Angeles, Cal., Mrs. K. Humphrey of Minn., Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Hulbert of Monroe and Miss Carrie Sawyer of Brodhead. Interment was in the Gar cemetery, Rev. Bridwell officiating.

SEAT FOR BLACKING BOX

Shoe Cleaning Robbed of Some of Its Present Discomforts.

The man who reaches middle age finds that the operation of shining his shoes is a task which grows more and more burdensome, so that he is liable to shrink at the expense of his appearance. He is compelled to lean over a box at an angle which is not only uncomfortable but one which is likely to permit the precipitation of the contents of his pockets all over the floor. If he endeavors to sit down he finds the difficulty of reaching his feet on the floor is quite as uncomfortable as standing. The

ANCHORED BY THE CHAIR LEGS.

Inventor has recently worked this out for him in the shape of a method of combining the chair and blacking box in a way that overcomes these objections. The principal feature of the invention is the manner in which the box and chair are locked together, so that as he is engaged in brushing his shoes the two will not have a tendency to part company. It will be readily seen how the front legs of the chair engage with a portion of the box to hold them together.

PUTNAM'S

THIS is the month for wedding gifts; this is the store.

It is perfectly reasonable to expect to find in a store like this the gifts that will be most acceptable to the young people who are establishing a home; such gifts have all the advantages of individuality as well as the practical advantage of helping to furnish the home.

If by any chance the bride should receive duplicates of any gifts she may return anything bought here and get full credit for it.

When wondering what you'll buy, either for the bride or yourself, our China and Glassware Department is bound to be of help in settling such questions; the prices are very reasonable. Come and see.

Softening Gold and Alloys.

Pure gold can be softened by heating it for four days at the boiling point of water. At higher temperature it softens much more rapidly, taking but a few seconds at 400 degrees F. It takes much longer to soften alloys, however, and since gold and silver coins are not pure metals, it takes a considerable period for the softening. It requires 575 degrees F. for a period of sixteen days to soften gold coins.

Steam Bath Good for Ferns.

A steam bath has a wonderful effect on ferns. To make this take all the plants up to the bathroom, close the door and window, and fill the bath with hot water. Let the plants stand in this hot, steamy air for two or three hours, then gradually clear the air so that the plants become accustomed to the ordinary atmosphere before they are replaced in their customary positions.

POSITIVE PROOF

Should Convince the Greatest Skeptic in Janesville.

Because it's the evidence of a Janesville citizen. Testimony easily investigated. The strongest endorsement of merit.

The best proof. Read it:

C. F. Lester, 1017 Wheeler St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I hadn't been feeling well for several months. My whole system seemed to be filled with uric poison. My whole body ached at times and it seemed to be swollen. I was dull and languid and had but little strength or energy. My kidneys didn't do their work right and I decided to try a kidney tonic. I had often heard Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of and I got a box. I felt so much better after I used them that I continued until I was well. I am glad to tell others how good Doan's Kidney Pills are. You may continue using the recommendation I gave Doan's Kidney Pills a few years ago."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

An Angling Story.
While fishing for pike in the River Waveney recently, Mr. E. Norman of the Brockdish (Norfolk) Angling society hooked a fish, but his line broke just above the swivel, to which the hook is attached. Throwing in again, he hooked, as he thought, another pike, but found that the lost swivel, bearing the hooked pike, had caught in his new set of hooks. He was thus able to land his original catch.

What Makes for Good Work.
We never do well that which we do not enjoy doing, that toward which our faculties of thought, feeling and temperament do not converge with unanimity of assent.

Decision Reserved.
An English seamstress, says the Manchester Guardian, who was helping to make some costumes for a Browning pageant, was asked if she had ever read any of the poet. "No," she replied, "I've never read any of that sort of stuff; not Browning, nor Shakespeare neither. But then, you know," she added, "my mother has her own opinion about Shakespeare."

Must Be Lover of Virtue.
No one who is a lover of money, a lover of pleasure, or a lover of glory, is likewise a lover of mankind; but only he who is a lover of virtue—Epictetus.

Oceans of Oriental Wool for WHITTALL RUGS

NO wool in the whole world makes such wonderful rugs as that grown on the backs of the hardy sheep of Asia. and many a ship from the Orient brings its quota of the precious stuff to the Whittall Mills.

To the uninitiated it may seem unnecessary to buy the raw material in India, Persia, Turkestan, Thibet, the Himalaya Mountains, the Holy Land, Damascus, in Syria, Aleppo, Angora in Turkey, and in Scotland—to transport some of it 1500 miles on Camels' backs over the trackless desert and all of it over the broad Atlantic, but each and every one of these kinds of wool has its own particular use and a proper blend guarantees long and satisfactory wear.

The very smallest detail that will add to the perfection of Whittall Quality is considered of tremendous importance.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"THE FAMILY WITH HAMLET LEFT OUT." attempts to bring up a family around a register. But you might as well try to bring up a family around a hearthstone. —Charles Dudley Warner.

A friend of mine who has a limited sum of money with which to build a house finds herself obliged to cut off a few hundred dollars from the family's specifications.

"I was trying to decide where to apply the pruning knife the other day," she said. "First of all, take out the expense."

My friend's eyes flashed fire. "Never," she said, "absolutely necessary for a house but it's all the difference in the world, is there not?"

She was planning not just a house—a place to sleep in, eat in, keep clean and show off to the neighbors. She was planning a home, a setting for a family, a cheerful place in which to spend long winter evenings, a rallying point for the children and their friends. A personality to love, remember, and long for in days of exile.

And, of course, she needed a fireplace for that.

To my mind Hamlet with Hamlet left out is still complete and perfect compared to a house without a hearth.

A fireplace in a room is like water in a landscape. It gives the whole vista a richer meaning and value.

One of the most successful mothers I know is always rapt on the subject of open fireplaces. She has an old-fashioned house, not at all luxurious, in fact, but a place where her children love to stay, and she has a cheerful place in which to spend long winter evenings, a rallying point for the children and their friends. A personality to love, remember, and long for in days of exile.

And, of course, she needed a fireplace for that.

To my mind Hamlet with Hamlet left out is still complete and perfect compared to a house without a hearth.

A fireplace in a room is like water in a landscape. It gives the whole vista a richer meaning and value.

One of the most successful mothers I know is always rapt on the subject of open fireplaces. She has an old-fashioned house, not at all luxurious, in fact, but a place where her children love to stay, and she has a cheerful place in which to spend long winter evenings, a rallying point for the children and their friends. A personality to love, remember, and long for in days of exile.

My friend's eyes flashed fire. "Never," she said, "absolutely necessary for a house but it's all the difference in the world, is there not?"

She was planning not just a house—a place to sleep in, eat in, keep clean and show off to the neighbors. She was planning a home, a setting for a family, a cheerful place in which to spend long winter evenings, a rallying point for the children and their friends. A personality to love, remember, and long for in days of exile.

And, of course, she needed a fireplace for that.

To my mind Hamlet with Hamlet left out is still complete and perfect compared to a house without a hearth.

Household Hint...

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

These hints should be fought by soap, the liquid with whole-oil and white hellebore; the proportion of the mixture are one-half pound of whole-oil soap and one gallon of water.

Ex-stains on table linen should be soaked out in cold water, not hot, before washing.

A vaseline stain cannot be removed after boiling. A fresh stain will disappear if washed in turpentine or sponged with ether.

THE TABLE.

Butter Scotch Pie—One cupful of brown sugar, butter the size of an egg, one-quarter of a cupful of water. Boil these ingredients until it waxes when dropped from the spoon. While this is boiling mix in a separate dish the yolks of two eggs, one pint of milk, one large tablespoonful of flour and one teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour this mixture slowly into the boiling sugar, water and butter and cook all previously and finish the top with beaten whites of the two eggs to which one-half cupful of sugar has been added. Brown and serve when cold.

Strawberry Kiss—Whites of three eggs beaten stiff, add one cup of vanilla, one teaspoonful of vinegar, a pinch of salt, continue to beat for a few minutes. Put in a loose hot tom cake tin that has been buttered and bake for a half hour in a very slow oven. When ready to serve, add one quart of strawberries that have been cut in half and sugared, cover with whipped cream and serve the same as short cake. This is a quantity for six persons.

Surprise Salad—Carefully cut a slice from the top of a well-ripened tomato, remove the seeds and part of the inner portion and fill with any salad—replace the slice of tomato and serve with a garnish of cut lemon.

Orange Ice Cream—One cup of heavy cream, one cup of thin cream, two cups of orange juice, sugar. Add the cream slowly to the orange juice, sweeten to taste and freeze. Serve with canned strawberries or fresh fruit mashed and sweetened.

Two Old Superstitions.

Women believe that if they go somewhere on Monday they will be on the go the rest of the week. That may be the explanation of the fact that women like to wash on Monday. Kill a cat and you will have bad luck for seven years; there is, however, no special superstition as to kittens, so it is best to begin on your cats early.

Women Worth While

MRS. CHARLES BENNETT SMITH.

(By Selene Armstrong Harmon.)

A cordial handshake, and a characteristic searching glance from the gray, not unfriendly eyes of Mrs. Charles Bennett Smith, wife of Representative Smith, of Buffalo, New York, are somehow enough to convince a stranger that here is a woman worth while. For the handshake is charged with personality. The eyes are those of one fearless, intuitive, and direct. Maybe all this is because Mrs. Smith has lived in contact with the real and earnest things of life in greater degree than many women.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Smith was for years actively engaged in newspaper work. She did her first writing under Samuel G. Blythe, who at that time had editorial charge of one of the big Buffalo papers, and who made her musical critic on his staff. Mrs. Smith, then Miss Frances Stanton, had a brilliant mastery of the theory of music. In addition to this, she was, and still is, a musician of no mean power of execution, playing that sweetest of instruments, the violin, with far more than amateur skill. She was, at different times, musical critic on two of Buffalo's biggest papers. While writing music, her facility of pen led her into other fields of expression, her special illustrated articles in Sunday newspaper supplements giving her first rank among the women feature-writers of the country.

In Washington, Mrs. Smith presides over the meetings of the Harmony club as president of that organization. The society there are women whose musical training and talents would entitle them to high rank among professional musicians if they had any inclination to enter professional life, and the club is regarded as one of the really influential factors for culture at the capital.

his father. His troubled eyes rested on her's as he said in a surly tone: "I'd like to know what I can do. I can't keep rabbits because they are so dirty; I can't keep a dog because he tears the clothes; I can't have a garden or play in the yard because you want a lawn. The Bentons can do anything they want if they don't siss. They have all kinds of pets, and a garden. It's as good as a circus to play there one afternoon."

"I was Mrs. Benton's little boy," she said that night Mr. and Mrs. Blinker sat and discussed their son. They had conscientiously endeavored to raise him as they thought he should be raised.

"I tell you, Miranda, you are too careful of your house and yard to raise that boy right. He don't get a square deal. He has no responsibility; let him have pets and make him care for them. I know where I can get a dandy pup for him, and he should have a garden."

Mrs. Blinker gasped. She prided herself on her spotless house and yard. She was the best housekeeper in the block.

"He cats and sleeps here, but that don't make home for the most of us. To have Tommy a good, happy, contented boy you have got to keep him busy along the right lines. Now when I was a boy—" "I know that by heart, that's ancient history," she hastily interposed.

"Do you," he asked, somewhat loudly, "your actions do not denote it. My observations are that your clean house and yard come first, the boy is last."

Mrs. Blinker sat silent. She was thinking. He was right; where the boy was concerned he generally was; and yet, she tried so hard to raise him scientifically. She had read with avidity columns of stuff on scientific child raising.

"Don't mind if Tommy dirties the house and himself," said her husband, breaking in on her painful reverie. "He is an active boy. He is going to keep busy. It is up to us to see that he keeps busy along the right lines."

Winning Models In the Recent International Hairdressers Competition

Beautiful Women Use and Recommend Newbro's Herpicide

A woman to be pretty must have pretty hair. There is a subtle charm about beautiful hair that lends more to personal adornment than all of the "beauty doctors" combined. The hair need not be of extraordinary length, but it must have that distinctiveness of appearance that comes from intelligent care, and is the result of perfect health.

The most cultured ladies in every community use Newbro's Herpicide; and when you see a head of hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life, it is a fairly good indication that Newbro's Herpicide has been used.

Newbro's Herpicide is the Original Germ-Remedy for dandruff. It eradicates this trouble and stops falling hair. It is the first real scalp prophylactic. A delightful and refreshing hair dressing. Stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson. When I was eight years old I used to have very long hair. Now it's growing shorter ever since I was thirteen. I comb my hair twice a day. It breaks off from the bottom. I use hair tonic and shampoo also. It doesn't do any good. Please advise me.

Does it injure the hair to fix it in many styles?

ROSE.

Combing the hair is not enough. It should be thoroughly brushed every day with a brush that will reach the scalp. Rub a little bit of castor oil into the scalp every day. Keep your brush and comb very clean. Once a week dip your brush into kerosene and brush the hair thoroughly with it. Once a month cut off the straggly ends of hair. Every three weeks give your hair an egg shampoo. Let the hair hang loose as much as possible—hair needs air and light. Do not do it up tightly at any time. At night put it in two loose braids. You can change the style of hair occasionally, but don't twist and pin it tight.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am eleven years old and a high school student. A student prevented my book from falling on the floor, so should I speak to him on the street? (2) Another student I like very much, but I have never had an introduction. If I make my acquaintance with him without an introduction do you think I will be doing wrong? (3) I have sinks under my eyes that are not very noticeable. Can you tell me a cause for them?

TRUE EYES.

(1) He simply performed a courtesy which any gentleman would do. You do not need to notice him on the street. He probably does not expect you to think of the matter again.

(2) He will think you are "fishing" for him if you introduce yourself to him. Be modest, my dear, and even if you don't get an introduction and you won't regret having been maidenly when later on you really fall in love with a man who loves you and wants to marry you.

(3) I do not exactly know what you mean by "sinks." If you mean hollows under the eyes, you may not be getting enough sleep, or your nerves may be out of order. Eat well, sleep well, exercise moderately and don't worry about anything—not even about the boys.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy of 20 years and when I was 18 I wished to learn the trade, started and I earned $2.50 per week. Then my father made me pay $4.50 for board, so I was forced to leave my learning and get work so I could board and clothe myself.

Later with my earnings I bought a wagon, horse and harness. My father quarreled and kept it up quite a time. He said that I was the fault of the trouble and I sold all but my horse, which he would not sell.

I left home to keep peace in the house. Now he wants to take the wagon back from the party I sold it to. Can he do that?

What can I do to stop the miserable life for the rest of the family?

H. P.

You are not legally of age until you are 21. Up to that time your father is supposed to support you and educate you as he is able. Some grasping fathers go further and claim that they can take anything a boy earns until he is of age. I am afraid this is a matter which you must take up with a lawyer. If you can show that your father consented to the sale of the wagon, he cannot make you trouble about it.

It is too bad that your father is so disagreeable to his family. I do not just know how you can make things better, as long as he does nothing for which the law can get after him. As long as your mother is willing to stay with him, you can do much to help her.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

"Take that! and that! and that!" Now, cry, just like a girl; you sassy!" Mrs. Blinker was baking cookies. She hurried to the front door. She knew that voice. Tommy, her eight-year-old cherub, was busily engaged in whacking a boy of about his age. They were in the middle of the street. His clothes were torn. He was streaked with dust. The fact that an auto might at any moment bear down upon them, was lost on Tommy, who was the type of a boy who when he found a thing to do did it with his might.

In answer to his mother's imperative call he came reluctantly into the house and sat facing her.

"Tommy," she said a trifle wearily, "you know what your father wants of you. He has warned you against fighting; this is the fourth fight you have been in this week and today is only Wednesday. What am I to tell Dad tonight?"

The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth

By
ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

Author of "The Woman from Wolbertone"

Illustrations by Ellsworth Young

Copyright, 1914, by F. G. Brown & Co.

"I'll do it right away," Wentworth tossed his hat on his head and left the office. He drew a long breath, when he stepped out on the sidewalk, and looked anxiously up and down Broadway as if hoping to see Merry approach with his nonchalant stride. He paused for a moment to light a cigar, then started at a brisk gait down the street. He was accosted here and there by a friend. Each one offered congratulations. He was in no mood for that sort of thing. A block further ahead he saw Phillips of the Herald in the moving throng. There would be no escaping him. He jumped on a downtown car, and a few minutes later he was at the Battery. He stepped off and crossed the square. The tide was coming in and a stiff breeze blew off the ocean.

He seated himself on a bench and watched the spray dash over the pier. Throngs came and went, but Enoch did not see them. His mind was centered desperately upon one anxiety: Merry must be found. He had felt so certain that the actor might appear at any moment that he had allowed Oswald to think he knew where he was. He reported him half-sick, trying to recuperate, and hating the worry of a lawsuit with an angry manager, which Oswald was trying to settle out of court. He assured him that the comedian was letter perfect in his part; all he needed was to appear at late rehearsals. The strain, however, was telling on Wentworth. He had grown nervous and irritable. Oswald saw traces of it, but laid it to anxiety over the preparations for his play.

Dorcas realized the change in her brother and felt it keenly. She contrasted the care-free, generous, gay Enoch as he had been a month ago, with the man who had aged suddenly, who was growing morose, fretful, uncommunicative, and impatient over trifles. Day after day she saw less of him. His plea was hard work, so the girl was left to her own devices. She had few friends in the city. She spent the fall days in long, solitary walks, and her mind dwelt constantly on Merry. Her brother scarcely mentioned the play to her. She read news of it in the papers. Through them she came the information that Enoch had relinquished journalism and was working on the production of a new play by a new author. She drew a long breath of relief over that announcement. She felt sure Enoch would do full justice to Merry when the time arrived. She was too proud to ask questions. Her brother had always taken her completely into his confidence; she was certain he would do so again when the toil and worry were over.

Wentworth watched her closely. He realized how she felt her reticence and change of feeling; her every glance told it. He wondered frequently what the thoughts were that she did not put into words. In every woman he had admired for beauty, intellectual or heart qualities there had been imperfections which were temperamentally feminine. Dorcas was different. Sometimes he fancied it might be caused by her seclusion from the world during girlhood. Then he remembered a few of her girl friends he had met. In each of them he had seen some petty deceit or frivolity which, man-like, he accounted a typical feminine vice. Dorcas was different in heart and intellect. She resembled stalwart men he had known.

He sat with his eyes fixed on an ocean steamer moving majestically up the harbor. When her whistle shrieked in response to a salute, Wentworth rose with a start and glanced sharply about him. He felt that some one was watching him. His eyes met the gaze of his sister. She sat on a nearby bench staring at him, a newspaper in her lap and her hands clasped listlessly over it.

"Why, Dorcas! How long have you been here? Did you call me?" "I did not speak to you," she answered quietly. "When I laid down my paper a minute ago you sat there." He did not offer to take a place beside her, though she moved to make room for him. His face flushed hotly when his glance fell on the headlines of a paper that lay in Dorcas' lap. "Have you seen the story about yourself in the Times?" "Of course I have," answered Enoch impatiently. "It was not my doing. Oswald insisted on it. Every paper is clamoring for news. We reproduce the play the first week of December." "The paper speaks of you alone, Merry isn't given credit for even suggesting the plot. His name is not mentioned."

Wentworth's brow wrinkled into an ugly scowl. "How could he be mentioned? He can't be found—anywhere."

"Mr. Oswald said yesterday he was in the Catskills, ready to come on at a moment's notice."

"I wish to God he were!" cried Wentworth desperately.

"Why don't you tell Mr. Oswald the truth?" "Dorcas, you're a child. You don't understand that I am up against a harder proposition than I can meet."

"It seems to me, Enoch," said the girl slowly, "if you had not—"

She did not finish the sentence. She had turned her eyes away from her brother and stared at the multitude of craft in the bay, jostling each other as vehicles do on Broadway.

"Had not what?" he insisted. She met his eyes calmly and they wavered before her own. "I mean if you had not made a false start—if you had gone into this honestly—everything would have come out happily."

Wentworth did not answer. "I can't feel, Enoch, that Merry has had fair play."

The man stamped his foot impatiently. "Help me to find him, then. Things will straighten out if he puts in an appearance. Come, let us walk home. It's too chilly for you to sit here."

Dorcas rose and folded the paper which lay on her lap. She kept up with her brother's long strides through the crowd that thronged Broadway. After a few minutes' silence he asked suddenly: "How did you happen to see Mr. Oswald yesterday?"

"He called at the house." "About what?" "On business. He has asked me to play 'Cordelia.'"

"It might have occurred to him to consult me!"

Wentworth stopped for a second. Dorcas was not looking at him—her eyes were turned straight ahead on the bustling street.

"Why didn't he speak to me first?" he persisted. "I don't know. I can't decide what to do. I would say 'yes' if I could talk it over with Andrew Merry."

"I have told you point-blank you are not to go on the stage."

"You know how I feel about it," Dorcas spoke quietly. "You remember, I told you it was the only work I ever cared to do."

"He might have taken me into his confidence," snarled Wentworth. "He knew how you felt about it. Besides, Enoch," the girl's voice trembled, "besides—lately I have not known whether you cared anything about my affairs."

Wentworth did not answer until they turned into the quieter region of Waverly place.

"Don't sit in judgment on me, Dorcas," he pleaded. "When the trolley gets swung back on its pole and things begin to run without constant switching, I'll return to the old routine. Have a little faith in me. I have nobody in the world except you."

Dorcas flung away the paper which she was carrying and tucked one hand into her brother's arm.

"It's a bargain?" he asked, looking down at her with a smile.

"It's a bargain," she answered.

"About 'Cordelia,' Dorcas, do as you please. I cut loose when father planned my future, and did what I wanted to. A girl, I suppose, has the same rights, especially if she's a girl who can be trusted—implicitly."

When he unlocked the door, Dorcas passed in before him. As he shut it behind him she threw her arms about his neck and kissed him. Wentworth held her for a moment in a close, affectionate grasp. On the hall table lay a note addressed to Dorcas, also a telegram for Wentworth. He tore it open and stood for a minute deep in thought.

"Enoch, I have an invitation here from Mr. Oswald to see Nazimova to-night. Do you mind if I go?"

"No. Give Oswald a message from me. I shan't have time to see him before I leave."

"Leave for where?" "For Montreal. I put a detective on Merry's track. He has almost laid his hand on him. Tell Oswald I will bring Merry back with me in two days at the latest."

"Oh!" cried Dorcas radiantly, "then everything will be righted!" "Everything will be righted," repeated her brother.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Bread Line.

"Miss Wentworth, what does 'Hilda' in 'The Master Builder' mean to you?" asked Grant Oswald during the first lull of quiet they met after leaving the theater. Their cab had been held up in a Broadway blockade and the street became suddenly still. "She means something. Ibsen, first, last, and all the time, deals in parables. Six people whom I know, intelligent people, have six different interpretations of 'Hilda.' I am curious to know what she stands for to you."

Dorcas turned her candid gray eyes to his.

"I see only one thing—conscience. She appears when the 'Master Builder,' by any cruel, unjust, selfish action, is bound to go down to the depths. Nothing can save him but his conscience. 'Hilda' is his conscience, of course."

"That is my interpretation exactly. It is a wonderful play!"

"It is a wonderful play," she pointed to a crowd on the sidewalk. "What is that string of men?" she asked. Their cab had been moving step by step for half a block. Again it came to a standstill.

"It's the bread line. Had you never seen it before?"

"No. Who are the men?" "God knows!" answered the Englishman, with a thrill of compassion in his voice. "They are a lot of half-frozen, starving, human wreckage, who have been waiting there for an hour to get a loaf of bread."

Dorcas lowered the carriage window and gazed out. Oswald watched her. The girl's face mirrored her feelings so keenly he could feel what was passing in her mind. Her lips quivered and tears hung on her lashes. She could not trust herself to speak.

"I shall never forget how that pitiful line appealed to me the first time I saw it," the man continued, "although I had known the poor of London since boyhood. This homeless, famished, orderly column, growing and growing as one man after another comes creeping from his burrow to hold a place, was too much for me. I stood watching it from that corner," he pointed across the street, "night after night. I used to try to help. In a few cases I did manage to put a man on his feet. The task was generally hopeless, except that I could satisfy the hunger of the moment. During hard winters in New York I have seen the line grow till there were hundreds in it. Sometimes it goes down Tenth street and around the corner."

Dorcas turned to look at him. Tears stood in her eyes and her lips quivered.

"I understand," he went on. "You are wondering why we, well clothed, fed and sheltered from the wind, are here, and they are—there. I do not know. It is a problem as old as the world itself. All we can do is to help individually, man to man."

Dorcas gazed back to the bread line. Oswald sat in thoughtful silence. "Don't think me sacrilegious, Mr. Oswald," she confessed, "but when I see such misery it makes me wonder if the Eternal himself has a conscience. She sat watching the line of patient, pallid men. Stragglers crept up to join it from every direction. 'I simply cannot imagine a God who—Mr. Oswald!' She grasped his arm with a half-stifled scream and laid her trembling hand upon his.

"What is it?" asked her companion, rising. "What frightened you, Miss Wentworth?" He stared past her out into the street. The block of vehicles had begun to move. They were again driving slowly down Broadway.

"Nothing," she answered quickly, "nothing but a chance resemblance. I thought I saw some one whom I once knew. It must have been a mistake."

Word Your Want Ad. With Care

Wanted: Position as book-keeper by young woman. Address "X" this Office.

Wanted: Position as book-keeper by experienced young woman who knows enough to work for her employer's interest and keep her mouth closed in the meantime—both in and out of the Office. Will start at small salary until ability is demonstrated. Address "X" this Office.

See any difference in the above ads? They were actually run in your home paper. Did you see them? The first one received an answer. The second pulled in nine. It was worded a bit eccentric, you say? It proved to the Employers that there was a girl who wanted work; who knew how to ask for it.

Can you write a good want ad? Did you ever try? Did you?

WANTED—Place to learn dressmaking. Address "Dressmaking" care Gazette. 6-6-15-11.
